BEACON COMMUNICATION SERVICES, LLP BUYS OUT SYNAMICS, INC.

May 24, 2007, Melrose, MA – The management team at Beacon Communication Services, LLP, has completed a management buyout of Synamics, Inc. when John Duplin, President & CEO and Anthony Rotella, VP of Operations assumed control of all assets and customers previously owned and managed by Synamics, Inc. Beacon Communication Services has over 20 years of experience providing corporate solutions ranging from audio and web conferencing to major event conferencing.

“I am very excited about the opportunity to continue to serve our customers with sophisticated conferencing solutions.” said John Duplin, President & CEO of Beacon Communications Services.

“There continues to be an increasing demand for conferencing solutions that provide high quality service without the inconvenience and disruptions of firewall issues and software downloads.” John added, “the applications of our web and event conferencing services increase daily as many of our Fortune 1000 customers are now using it for training, e-learning, webinars, sales, marketing & remote support, to name a few.”

Online events such as webcasts and webinars are becoming a staple on the web for business professionals and consumers to attend and view live and/or on-demand. The research firm Frost & Sullivan has noted in a recent report that "in 2006, total revenues in the web event services market reached $140.5 million, forecasting $500.5 million for 2012. As more customers are ready to invest in this type of solutions, the web event services market is expected to show impressive growth rates through out the forecast period."
